

Business

Thursday, February 24, 2005

PAGE C-1

Divorce-Mediation Practice Opens An Office In Clinton

CLINTON — Anju D. Jessani of Pohatcong has expanded her divorce-mediation practice, opening an office at 42 Main St.

Divorce with Dignity Mediation Services was established in Hoboken in 1997 and has mediated more than 300 divorces. Mediation is a court-approved process in which a trained neutral person encourages and facilitates the resolution of a dispute between two or more parties.

According to Ms. Jessani, "Separating couples who successfully mediate spare themselves and their families the bitter courtroom battles that characterize an adversarial divorce."

Ms. Jessani graduated from Douglass College at Rutgers University and received her MBA from the Wharton School. Previously she was a vice president at JP Morgan. She is president elect of N.J. Association of Professional Mediators (njapm.org).

For details, call 303-0396, e-mail divocewithdignity@hotmail.com or visit divorce-source.com/NJ/dwd.html.